CORPORATE GOLF DAYS

Two pristine championship golf courses, the renowned practice facilities of the Palmerston Golf Academy and a charmingly positioned luxury clubhouse on the banks of the Broadwater Lake make Bocket Hall Golf Club one of the UK's most exclusive golf venues.

Regular hosts to professional and amateur events and golf's biggest names including Tiger Woods, Rory McIlroy, Colin Montgomerie and Laura Davies, the Melbourne and Palmerston are two of the finest golf courses in England, providing the perfect backdrop for the tournaments and golf days that fill the social calendar.

MELBOURNE

Designed by Peter Alliss and Clive Clark, the par-72 Melbourne crosses the River Lea on several occasions as you follow the natural contours and undulations of the estate. Each hole presents a series of questions but the course is perhaps best remembered for its closing hole, one of the most memorable finishes in golf. A teasing downhill par-five, the golfer must decide whether to lay-up or go for it in two before taking a short ferry ride to the 18th green, which sits in front of the grand main hall.

PALMERSTON

In contrast to the Melbourne, you don't have to contend with the River Lea on the tree-lined Palmerston Course, with the estate's ancient woodland becoming the hazard instead. Designed by renowned architect Donald Steel, this challenging par-73 layout is a great test for professionals and amateurs alike, combining fiendishly-placed bunkers and large undulating greens with a picture book setting.

Brocket Hall offers numerous sporting options to suit your specific event, ranging from the typically English country pursuits of croquet, tennis, archery and falconry displays to a selection of action-packed motorised sports, shooting and much more.
